3. See Ugo Mulas

Intimate non-selfies.

Behold a reinvigorating hit of the New York art world in the mid-1960s, before collectors, advisers, and auction madness overran everything. Revel in this amazing show of super-candid black-and-white images by Italian photographer Ugo Mulas, who captured the likes of Jasper Johns, Marcel Duchamp, Barnett Newman, Robert Rauschenberg, and Andy Warhol. Lovingly organized by Hendel Teicher and beautifully installed. Marks and Teicher deserve a medal for this one. —Jerry Saltz
